

Outstanding Question Box

- How is the process of subunit exchange being regulated? It is currently unclear what controls the amount of each Arp2/3 complex population. Several attractive explanations are possible, such as the regulation of the protein level, at the RNA or protein level, as well as modulating the structure by post-translational modifications.